Mr. John H. Davitt
Sabotage and Espionage Unit
Room 3262
Justice Department
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Davitt:

25X1A Enclosed are the memoranda which I mentioned over the telephone concerning the possibilities of enjoining a threatened breach of a secrecy agreement as would occur in circumstances similar to the [REDACTED] case. Part of one of the memorandums deals with a possible prosecution for attempted espionage which we have already discussed at our previous meeting.

25X1A What we are interested in now is getting your opinion on the feasibility of the injunction approach in this type of case. We are not thinking of the [REDACTED] case in particular, but using it only as an example of the type of situation in which we think an injunction might be used. Thus, assuming that all other remedies, administrative and otherwise, fail what do you think of this injunction argument?

I will give you a call some time next week to see if you have had a chance to read the memorandums and then at your convenience I would like to talk about this approach.

Very truly yours,

25X1A
